

Saskatoon Man Invents
New Simple TelevisionEmployee of Electrical Company Has Patent For Device

Two small box-like affairs attached to the radio receiving which will receive the voice and image of a performer from broadcasting stations clearly and distinctly, the home are forecast by a electrical engineer of Saskatoon.

An invention, which he claims will make television in the home simpler and less costly, has just been patented by Sigurd Sanda, employed by the Levey-Dominion Electrical Company. Sanda has been employed with his profession since 1922 and has been added to the staff of work by Roy McKinnon, his partner.

In television apparatus used at present a "scanning disc" to break up the image into small parts tends to present a transmitted picture lacking in detail and also has difficulty maintaining synchronization between the transmitter and the receiver, states Mr. Sanda. His invention, he claims, will do away with the scanning disc and the picture to be transmitted and received by wire or wireless without the necessity of the scanning disc and will, in addition, render the "scanning" mechanism simpler and cheaper.

He has also patented a television and broadcasting system which will be used in the future. The apparatus involves the use of lenses, apertures or mirrors mounted on a rotating disc, for the image to be vibrated or tipped in two planes, horizontal and vertical. In this manner the image to be transmitted or received is either rotated or reversed in the same manner as the case of the camera in the projection in the case of the receiver.

Important Harbor In North
Dutch Harbour In Arctic Islands

Although the Arctics are located in the "great white north," they are not so cold as they are often thought to be. Rather they may be said to be always "chilly" damp and foggy. This is due to the fact that the first harbor of importance in the north was not made in any large harbor but in the small one in the North and has played an important part in the history of the north.

It is situated in the Arctic Islands, and is the only harbor in the world by a radio station. Dutch Harbour is the shortest route from the Arctic states to the United States. It is the only harbor in the world by a radio station. It is the only harbor in the world by a radio station.

Explanations and Comments

The First Lesson At Thessalonica,

Acts 17:1-5, tells of the first evangelizing of the leading trade and giving of the gospel from time immemorial. His words in the Thessalonians, 2:12-13, are a beautiful statement of the Christian's duty in Thessalonica, 1 Thess. 1:1. He was from Philippi, and he maintained there first, carrying on his letter to the church he founded.

The result of Paul's preaching was that some of the Jews and some
